

Press Release

London & Leeds, 1 September 2008

Q-Park and Purple Parking form an alliance.

Q-Park's Heathrow operations to be acquired by Purple Parking.

Q-Park and Purple Parking are delighted to announce that, with immediate effect, Purple Parking will take over the operation of Q-Park's airport car parks at Heathrow.

In a joint statement, Adam Bidder, Managing Director of Q-Park GB, and Mark Hinge, Managing Director of Purple Parking, said this would enable the continuation of a quality service to be delivered at Heathrow and to develop new opportunities to work together in the future.

Q-Park will continue to focus on building its car park portfolio and pursue growth in its core markets of City Centre, Railway and Health Care parking. Purple Parking will build scale in one of its core markets, being the leading provider of off airport parking at Heathrow. As a result Purple Parking will offer its customers and distributors a wider choice of product at Heathrow.

Company information

Purple Parking is Heathrow's leading off airport car park operator and one of the largest distributors of airport parking in the UK, offering parking at 20 airports across the country.

Q-Park is ranked in the top three European parking companies; owning, managing and operating parking facilities. Q-Park is the recognised leader in quality parking, and has expanded rapidly with a portfolio of over 800,000 parking spaces and offices in The Netherlands, Great Britain, Germany, Belgium, France, Ireland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Finland.
